

"NO RACE," BUT RELIANCE SHOWS HER HEELS NEATLY

Commonly Believed That Today's Race Would Be Last of International Series for Classic America's Cup.

RELIANCE PULLED AWAY FROM START

Took Lead at Crossing Line and Rapidly Increased Distance of Advantage Over the Foreign Boat—Not Far From the Time Limit.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Highlands, N. J., Aug. 31.—Today's race for the America's cup is declared off. Neither boat was able to finish within the time limit.

Highlands, N. J., Aug. 31.—In a strong twenty-knot northeaster the Reliance and the Shamrock started in what is generally conceded to be the last of the present series of cup races. Early in the morning the wind was so strong that it was thought for a time that the race again would have to be postponed. But the regatta committee decided much discussion on the excursion craft as to the probability of the racers being able to finish within the time limit. At 1:25 the yachts had been lost in the mist for 25 minutes. An aerogram received at that time said that the Reliance was one mile in the lead.

The wind off shore became very light and it looks more than ever as though the boats would not be able to finish.

STEER CAUSES PANIC AT PICNIC IN RACINE

Many Persons Are Knocked Down at Outing of Butchers and Many Are Badly Hurt.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 31.—In a panic at the first annual picnic of the butchers of Racine, held at Sunnyside park, four persons were injured by a mad steer breaking loose and running through a crowd of 1,000 people.

The injured: Anna Schultz, aged 12, head cut, leg and arm bruised; Herman Schultz, aged 10, leg bruised, arm fractured, nose cut; Frank Larson, aged 14, cut on head, bruised on legs; Henry Wilkey, aged 20, injured internally.

A hundred or more persons were knocked down and three women fainted. There was to be a beef killing contest and two head of beef were brought to the grounds in a wagon. In unloading one got loose and started through the crowd. Men, women and children ran for their lives in all directions, knocking each other down and yelling at the tops of their voices. After a chase of twenty minutes the steer was captured.

The contest was between Charles Richter, Milwaukee, and John Smith, Chicago. The Milwaukee man won in 4 minutes and 17 seconds. The time of the Chicago man was 4 minutes 28 seconds. When Smith was dressing his beef it slipped from the gambrel and fell. The gambrel struck Richter on the head, cutting him seriously.

What the Strong Man Is Not. The strong man is not the soldier on horseback with saber drawn. The strong man is the man with folded arms who utters the truth regardless of consequences. No one can injure a man who refuses to be hurt; you may kill him, but you cannot touch the man in him. He wields a power that he would have to give up if he stooped to physical force.

London's Many Graveyards. Of the 362 burial grounds which London has had only 40 are still in use. More than 50 have vanished from sight entirely; about a hundred have been transformed from neglected, offensive eyesores into bright, cheerful gardens, where London's toilers meditate among the tombs during their luncheon hour; and the rest, crowded with graves, are closed alike to the undertaker and the public.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

Two new cases of bubonic plague are reported in Pacasmayo, one in Molendo and two in Lima, according to a dispatch from Lima, Peru. A proposition has been submitted to the chamber of deputies at Lima to bar members of religious orders expelled from France entering Peru. The New Mexico world's fair board has decided to exhibit a turquoise mine in actual operation as one of the features of its display at the St. Louis exposition.

It is announced that the United Fruit company will immediately replant the Jamaica estates devastated by the recent hurricane, thus giving employment to thousands of people. Governor Hemming of Jamaica has asked the Associated Press to contradict the report that there has been an outbreak of the bubonic plague in Jamaica and says the health of the inhabitants of the island is excellent.

MAKE APPEAL TO POPE FOR HELP

BULGARIANS AND MACEDONIANS UNITE IN PLEA.

ASK AID DENIED BY RUSSIA

Carnage at Smilovo Resulted in Complete Victory for the Turkish Troops.

Rome, Aug. 31.—The Bulgarians and Macedonians addressed to the pope an appeal for assistance in the struggle against Turkey. They say that although they are not Catholics, they hope to receive from him the help denied them by the Russians. News from Salonica says that 1,000 Bulgarian insurgents were slain and a large force routed in a bloody battle which occurred at Smilovo. The victory of the Turkish troops was complete, and the losses on their side were insignificant.

The insurgents, to the number of 3,000, occupied a position on a height, which was stormed by six battalions of Turkish troops commanded by Seret Pasha. After 1,000 of their number had been slain the Bulgarians fled in the face of the heavy Turkish artillery fire.

The Bulgarian insurgents on capturing the town of Neveska, Aug. 25, seized the arms and ammunition of the garrison, levied a contribution of $5,000 on the town, and then withdrew to the mountains. The Turkish troops on their arrival bombarded the town, but receiving no response, they entered the town without molesting the inhabitants.

Preach for Holy War.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 31.—According to the Dnevnik the hoda (teachers attached to a mosque) in the vilayet of Kossavo are preaching that the time for a holy war has come, and that the people must be ready to kill the Christians in the vilayet. Insurgent bands are said to be in complete control of the districts of Domirhisar and Kilshevo, and the chief mountain passes in the vilayet of Monastir.

The total strength of the bands in the vilayet of Adrianople is estimated at 6,000 men. The insurgents have blown up the barracks at Ghoktipe, near Malkoternovo, killing sixty soldiers. They also attacked and set fire to the Turkish camps at Egri-palanka, Kratovo and Koteheni. A great panic ensued, the troops firing into each other.

Insurgents are Strong. The Bulgarian government has sent another regiment to strengthen the frontier forces in the neighborhood of Kostendil. A private telegram from Rula, Bulgaria, near Kostendil, says the reservists in the frontier villages have received orders to be ready for mobilization the moment that fighting occurs at the frontier posts.

Dispatches received from Constantinople, Salonica, Monastir and Adrianople reveal an equally unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Macedonia. From Salonica come reports of new risings. At Monastir the insurgents are said to be masters of the situation. Telegrams from Adrianople declare that the insurgent bands are continuing their ravages.

Officers Demand Pay.

At the moment that the Porte is asking Belgium to supply officers for the Macedonian gendarmerie the Swedish ambassador at Constantinople has notified the Turkish government that unless they receive their pay immediately the Swedish officers now at Uskub will leave the country. The Dnevnik says the Servian diplomatic agent has notified the Porte that two divisions of the Servian army have been mobilized without any hostile intention as regards Turkey, but they will be sent to the frontier to prevent Albanian incursions into Servia.

A new outbreak is reported to have occurred in the environs of Salonica, and several skirmishes have taken place between Glevgyell and Salonica, and there has also been a fight near Edidjevarda, both sides losing heavily.

THE BIG BELOIT STRIKE ENDS

MEN VOTE TO RETURN TO THEIR LABORS.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCES COME IN

Conclude Nothing to Be Gained by Staying Out Longer—Action Was Taken at Meeting of Union.

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 31.—After being out on a strike for 16 weeks too machinists of the Berlin Machine works voted to give up the fight and go back to work. The local union sustained their action and the men are free to seek employment in the big shop without interfering with their standing in the union. The action makes the Berlin works an open shop, which, in fact, it has always been.

Vice-President Mulberry of the International Association of Machinists said regarding the action of the unions:

"Yes they did take such action. The question was asked whether, owing to local conditions there was anything to be gained by keeping up the fight at this time. Conditions here have worked against the men, and people have become prejudiced by the attitude of the press and the employers' association. If it had not been for these 'outside influences' I think we should have effected a nice settlement with the Berlin."

Injustice Was Done

"Personally I have nothing against Mr. Yates, and I don't think the men have, but there are those whom I can never forgive, and if the local men all feel as I do they will not forget the injustice done them. We have remedies to apply to these ills and will probably make use of them."

"When the question came to a vote a majority of the Berlin strikers present voted that there was nothing to be gained at this time by keeping up the fight and the local sustained their action. This leaves all of them free to go back to work. There is no trouble with the molders at present, but I don't know what may come up later."

Some Figures on the Strike

The strike, which came to an end by the action of the Machinists' union was instituted Friday afternoon, May 8, just 16 weeks ago. While only 108 machinists went out, their leaving involved the entire shop and upwards of 600 were thrown out of employment. The molders were not involved in the difficulty, but continued to work for a month longer, when the attack on Supt. Lane by a discharged workman precipitated a shut-down in that department.

Consumption of Eggs.

Prof. Thompson, who is a statistician of reputation, has discovered that in the city of New York each family of five persons consumes on an average four eggs a day. In Chicago, if it is accepted that the city has reached a population of 2,000,000, the rate of egg consuming is higher, and every person in the city manages to consume one whole egg each day in the year.

A Much-Insured Kansan.

Noting that a man in St. Louis had nearly a million in life insurance, the Globe-Democrat says: "Outside of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, he probably carries the largest insurance of any man in the 'United States.' St. Louis must go 'back and sit down.' C. J. Devlin of Topeka has $1,200,000 in life insurance.—Kansas City Journal."

Out of Jobs.

The admiralty has directed that all foreigners on board his majesty's ships shall be removed as soon as British substitutes can be found. This will affect bandmasters and mess caterers, who in British fleets in foreign waters are seldom of British extraction.

Pressure of Grape Sap.

The pressure of sap rising from a grape vine root has been found equal to sustaining a column of mercury three and a half feet high.

WHAT IS FORTUNE OF THE NATIVES?

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Sofia, Aug. 31.—The entire absence of news from western Macedonia is causing the wildest conjectures as to the fate of the residents of Krichchevo and the other towns which were open to the Albanian aggression. In the state of Adrianople the Turks and insurgents are both pillaging, and laying the country waste.

LAWLESSNESS AT BEIRUT COMMON

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
London, Aug. 31.—The correspondent of the Birmingham Post reports that stabbings are of daily occurrence at Beirut. Among notable instances is that of a recent attack on the English archdeacon in broad daylight.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Troy, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Fire this morning destroyed four brick buildings, 41-49 River street. The loss was one hundred thousand dollars.

ROBBERS TORTURE MAN AND SECURE HIS MONEY

Hermit Is Forced to Tell Where He Hid His Wealth by Three Masked Men.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 31.—Charles Crabbe a bachelor who lives alone on his farm three miles northeast of Hagerstown, was awakened by three masked men and tortured and robbed. When the robbers awoke Crabbe they demanded the money he had drawn from the bank the day before. He denied having any money in the house. The robbers threatened to make him take poison if he did not instantly reveal the hiding place of the money. After again denying that he had any money, Crabbe was bound hand and foot, thrown to the floor, his teeth pried open with a knife and a drug poured into his mouth, which he was made to swallow. He became very sick and in his agony revealed where his hoard was to be found.

STATE NOTES

Leo Sparlin, aged 16 years, son of County Clerk Sparlin of Barron, in attempting to board a train near Minneapolis, lost a foot and died from the shock of the injury.

John Helmeyer of Ashland, who is charged with stabbing John O'Neil, was today bound over to the circuit court under $1,000 bonds.

District Attorney Theodore W. Brazeau of Grand Rapids has issued orders that all gambling devices, including slot machines, must be destroyed at once.

Notices have been issued at Grand Rapids calling for a special election on the saloon license question on Sept. 15, in accordance with a plan to raise the saloon licenses from $200 to $350 or $500.

The commissioners appointed on the application of the city of Fond du Lac and the town of Ashland for the revision of the real estate assessment of the county made by the county board of supervisors in 1903 have completed their work, and the city assessment is reduced 8 per cent, and that of the town of Ashland 10 per cent.

The new stone arch bridge across the Fox river at John street in Appleton will be dedicated and thrown open to traffic on Sept. 16, and the day will be a general holiday.

Engineer Jouna and Promoter Phillips of the Fond du Lac Northern line have completed the survey for the new line between Fond du Lac and Manitowish via Chilton, and work will begin at both terminals next spring.

Farmers living in the vicinity of Beloit have lost droves of swine from cholera, and it is supposed that many more reports will succumb to the epidemic.

The report of a gun frightened a team of horses attached to a binder, and Frank Baxter of Antigo, the driver, was thrown to the ground in front of the sickle, which severed his arm at the shoulder.

BODIES REST SIDE BY SIDE

Murdered Servant Girl and Suicide Taken to the Morgue at St. Louis.

SECRET MARRIAGE

Story of Unknown Romance Leaks Out After the Tragedy of Last Night.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—Henry Keevil, the young man who last night shot and killed Annie Schner, a servant girl, was overcome by remorse and fear of punishment and ended his own life with a bullet this morning. The body of the suicide was taken to the morgue, where it was laid upon a marble slab beside that of his victim.

Secretly Married. It has been learned today that Keevil and the servant girl were secretly married about four weeks ago. It has been impossible to secure further details of their wedded life. The cause of the tragedy is unknown, and no credence is placed in any of the theories advanced. Keevil is the son of a wealthy hatter.

ROBBERS SLAY MEN IN CITY CAR BARN

Secure $3,000 in Cash and Escape Under Cover of Darkness—Victims Unwarned.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Unwarned and unchallenged two men guarding the receipts of the Chicago City Railway company in the barns at Sixty-first and State streets early Sunday morning were murdered and a third was shot and seriously wounded by masked bandits, whose cowardice in the hold-up was without a parallel in the history of Chicago highwaymen.

A youth of 19 and three companions were made the targets for the money-maddened desperadoes, who, shielded by darkness, opened a deadly fire with automatic revolvers on their unsuspecting victims through a closed window. The only warning of danger to the ill-fated men was the crack of the first shot; the crashing of glass and the lifeless fall to the floor of Frank Stewart, a clerk in the office, the first victim of the hold-up. In whose body the bandits' bullets reached a vital spot.

Fast as the robbers' fingers could press the triggers bullet followed bullet through the office windows until the bandits saw that both Stewart's comrades had fallen and they believed that their horrible plan to clear the way for robbery with wholesale murder had succeeded.

The expectation of resistance thus removed by their deadly volleys, the robbers rushed through the adjacent carmen's room for the inner office, where bundles of money were piled on the desk. In the carmen's room the form of Motorman John B. Johnson met their sight. He had been aroused from sleep on a bench by their shots and was rubbing his eyes and only half awake.

Robbers Secure $3,000. Without a word the robbers shot him down, the bullet crashing through his head before he could realize the commotion that had aroused him. He died instantly, unaware of the fate of his co-workers. One of the robbers rushed by the prostrate form into the office, filled his arms with money, $3,000 in all, and the two desperadoes made their escape.

The entire tragedy, from the death of Stewart to the disappearance of the robbers in the enshrouding night, occupied little more than a minute of time.

MINISTER VISIBLY ELATED

Conference at Washington Appeared Favorable to Him.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Washington, Aug. 31.—Chetlik Bey, the Turkish minister to the United States, this morning had a long conference with Secretary Hay. When he emerged from the diplomatic chamber exhibited a spirit of exultation, but refused to discuss the object of his conference. Immediately after the talk with the minister, Hay closeted himself with Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling.

IN OLD NEW ENGLAND

LITTLE TOWN A PLACE OF HISTORIC ASSOCIATION.

Today a Small Fishing Community, Newcastle Has in the Past Played an Important Part in the Nation's Life.

(Special Correspondence.) If you say to some people that Newcastle, N. H., is a place of historic association, that once played an important part in the life of the nation, they laugh at you because the place is so small. That compact little fishing community is ludicrously diminutive with our present standard of national expansion, but, doubtless, the very quaintness and charm which constantly attract visitors from the big rushing world is a survival of the past, or better still, we like to think the little town has yet the simple and wholesome life which made it once a stronghold of free government.

As a military outpost the tiny town of Newcastle has always played a part in both colonial and national interests. Doubtless that is the source of its name, for not only is the island girt about with a rockbound shore and buttressed into the sea as if built by nature as a fortress, but it has nearly always been surmounted by a walled fortification of some kind, which is a part of its picturesque features.

There was early built "an earthwork with certain great guns," but a regular fortification was erected there as early as 1688. There was a great stir in Newcastle when, in December, 1774, the King's colors were hauled down from this fort, and it is said that the ammunition which supplied the continentalists at Bunker Hill was stored here.

The site has been alternately fortified and neglected from the earliest times up to the recent Spanish war, when the fear of an attack from the Spanish fleet frightened all the seacoast. At that time the ruins of Fort Constitution were again rehabilitated and the soldiers stationed there made things lively for the quaint old town. But only the season prior every one had looked upon the place just as a melancholy ruin, and old residents would tell the story of its ancient building in the time of William and Mary. The names of those sovereigns were then associated with it, but the vicissitudes of its history have each given it a different title. During the revolution it was called Hancock, and when rebuilt in 1808 the name was again changed to Constitution.

From its exposed situation at the mouth of the Piscataqua, Newcastle has always been not only a place of danger from attack by hostile armies, but to mariners at every season its shoals are to be dreaded. Sailing parties know how easily the squalls come upon this vicinity, and dread the approach. And yet for years the islands had no lighthouse. At last the Fort Point lighthouse was installed, an inner light for Portsmouth harbor.

It was during the administration of Gov. John Wentworth that the first one was built, in 1771. Before that a lantern hung from the flagstaff of the fort was the only beacon for sailors. When the governor, in his most eloquent phrases, appealed to the assembly, there was talk of "squandering the people's money," but the governor built the lighthouse and the assembly afterward paid for it. The wooden Colossus at that time was 90 feet in height, so that it became confused with the Whalesback, so it was shortened 60 feet and later, in 1879, displaced by the present iron tower.

Martello tower, west of the fort and lighthouse, is the most picturesque object in Newcastle. Built on a ridge of high ledge, it is a favorite object for artists to paint. It is said to have been constructed in a single night by citizens and soldiers together, who were hourly fearing an attack of the British, but romantic persons are apt to weave legends about so fine an old ruin.

Hardly less antique in its historic associations than the fortress itself is the old Jaffrey house, which, though somewhat remodeled, has yet in its structure great timbers like a ship, so it may stand the wear and tear of two or three more centuries.

It was built previous to 1680, though just when is not known, and in its picturesque location it has always been a center of romantic interest. It is a favorite resort of lovers, many of whom have been married there, and it has been much visited by noted people. Longfellow is said to have here mused on the ballad of Lady Wentworth. The big parlor was for a time used as a meeting place of the provincial assembly, and the militia was drilled there during 1812.

A single Lombardy poplar tree is a famous landmark in Newcastle, since it indicates all that remains of the Walton house of witchcraft days. The delusions of Salem did not propagate extensively in this wind-blown town, but there was one well-defined circumstance of a "missile-throwing devil" which stirred deeply for a time certain pious souls.

One deacon had to wear his head bandaged in consequence of a scurrying skillet which this uncanny spirit had set flying through the air. There are said to have been saucers and pokers launched upon the innocent, and even at times they rained upon the house, but always this doomed house of Walton was the scene of havoc.

Prayer meetings were held regularly in consequence, that evil might be averted, but long ere these sessions had been given over the missiles had ceased to fly, and apparently this particular devil had moved along. Now even the Walton house exists no more and only this solemn tree is standing in a negative way, with half its branches naked of leaves, a sorry survival of the flourishing group which shaded a once proud doorstep.

The oldest house in town is standing as the melancholy background of a lousy cabbage patch. Such patches have of late acquired much dignity, and because of the literary as well as the historic distinction of the old house the laundress occupant never "calls round" for the washing, but with great hauteur receives the weekly burdens from the boarders down the lane, and thus it is the oldest house becomes the motive of a pilgrimage.

The brave historians of Newcastle ascribe to the life of this tiny hamlet three distinct periods, two of which are included as the rise and fall, indicated by its historical association, and the third period of present prosperity comes to it as one of the thriving summer resorts of the New England coast. It is a quaint souvenir of the former dignities of the island that the lordly hostelry which has grown up here since colonial times should bear the name of the colonial governor whom Longfellow has happily immortalized in Lady Wentworth.

The favorite diversions of a summer's day for visitors at Newcastle are sailing and deep sea fishing, and there is a great fascination in following this pastime of the ancient residents. Like the other seafaring communities at Salem and Marblehead, Newcastle still adheres to its maritime interests, but where once this life took these men quite round the world, it leads them nowadays only to the distant northeast haunts of cod and mackerel, so that their lives have become yet more remote and solitary.

Most of these towns have in consequence degenerated, but not so Newcastle. The very isolation of this island home, with its spirit of political independence and sturdy resourcefulness, appears to have kept their lives pure and wholesome. They are still a primitive people, but the historic associations they can boast are not darkened by a single crime.

The Irish Woman's Compliment. Father Thomas Hendrick, Roman Catholic Bishop-elect of Cebu, Philippine Islands, is a man of many accomplishments. He enjoys nothing more than the study of social types, especially as he goes about the streets; and he holds that Irish wit and discernment are rarely at fault. When he visits New York he is sometimes entertained by a friend whose wife, though a Jewess, shows in her Titian hair and complexion of peaches and cream something more than a strain of Celtic blood.

Walking with the lady not long ago on Twenty-third street—as he tells the story—were accosted by an old Irish woman, who huskily implored alms. The lady paused, opened her purse, and placed part of its contents in the beggar's extended palm.

For an instant the old woman wavered—apparently perplexed by the unusual type of beauty before her. But only for an instant. Then, saluting to the priest as if for absolution, she exclaimed: "Sure and the Mother of God must have been just such a swate, beautiful Jewess as yourself."—New York Mail and Express.

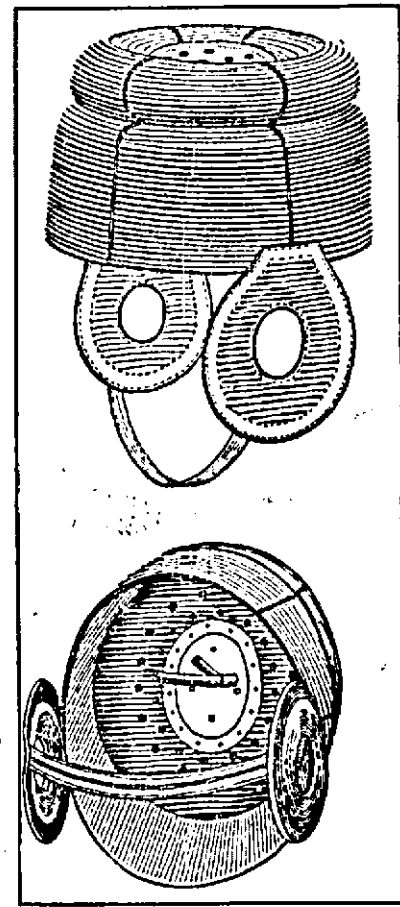

Ceremony Went Wrong. Mr. Ritchie, the English chancellor of the exchequer, found himself in an odd predicament recently when called upon to officiate at the formal opening of a public hall. The nicely laid plans or a committee or arrangements had been upset by an oversight. When the chancellor, with all due dignity, inserted the key which was to fling wide the portals there was no response. The lock would not answer the pressure of the key. Too late it was discovered that the chancellor could not perform the most important ceremony of the day in the manner arranged. Some too anxious officer had turned the key on the wrong side of the door.

Football Gear.

Pneumatic Head Guards Are a Novelty • Rules Require Harness Changes.

The equipment of a football player for the coming season will not differ materially from that of last year with one exception. It has been believed that many of the injuries received in football were due to the use of heavy protecting armor, particularly the head guards, which had grown so hard and unyielding as to give plenty of cause for this supposition. The rules committee therefore passed a rule that if head protectors were worn they should no longer be made of sole leather, paper mache or other hard and unyielding material, and all other devices for protectors must be so arranged and padded as in the opinion of the umpire to be without danger to other players.

To conform to this rule a pneumatic head harness has been designed, and it is certainly one of the greatest improvements in the player's equipment. It is made of soft leather, fitting the head closely, and has a pneumatic crown sufficient to afford absolute protection. Ventilation is provided through heavy felt. Many trainers and players from leading college teams have examined this head harness and give it their unqualified approval.

Next in importance to the pneumatic head harness players will welcome the combined leg, knee and shin guard made after a model submitted by Coach Warner of the Carlisle Indian school and highly endorsed by players and trainers who have examined it thoroughly. It will be found in use during the coming season by some of the best players on the gridiron.

The old arrangements of separate protectors for each of the parts covered by this arrangement was really only a makeshift when compared to the thorough protection which this gives, while the movements are not retarded in the slightest degree. Heavy wool felt is used in padding the guard both inside and out, and in every particular it is made in exact accordance with decisions of the rules committee. Another arrangement for which Mr. Warner is also responsible consists of a shoulder guard molded to the form and heavily padded both inside and out with wool felt.

Of course it is by the players on the prominent college teams that the rank and file will naturally be guided in making their selection of equipment for football, and too much care cannot be exercised, particularly this season, in providing for those articles which will not conflict with the recent decisions of the rules committee, as equipment not sanctioned by them and worn by a player on the field will disqualify him. To provide head harness that will also be in accord with these rules.

NEW FOOTBALL GEAR.

ings, but less expensive than the pneumatic style, two others have been designed. The better of these is made of soft black leather, well padded, while the other is made of brown canvas, well padded.

H. B. Conliffe, trainer at the University of Chicago, designed a harness which was very popular last year, and to bring this within the scope of the present rules the crown is now made of soft leather, well padded, thus combining in itself all its former good points with the improvements demanded this season.

THE INFLUENCE OF LAND.

Highest Type of Manhood Comes from the Country Where There is Room for Action.

The causes which control the ebb and flow of humanity between city and country are among the most subtle and obscure of social phenomena, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The characteristic of the people of all new countries is vigor. It is due to the abundance of land for all the people, and the action and reaction between land and man. The life of new countries is rude, but the nourishment is abundant, and the pure air sends pure blood coursing through the veins. The result is a race of strong men. When class distinctions are marked the gentry gain culture without losing strength. That is the highest type of manhood. It was seen in the pre-Augustan age of Rome, in the chivalry of medieval western Europe, in the planters of our own southern states in the first half of the nineteenth century. The development of the highest type of manhood involves the condemnation of the majority to a rude and laborious life. But such men can be propagated from generation to generation only so long as they remain in their rural environment. In the cities degeneration occurs. Here and there vigor is transmitted through several generations of city bred men, at least in individuals, who maintain the family name and standing. The tendency is to degeneration, and the mass yields to the tendency. The result is seen in the slums and the potter's field. The new men who dominate the cities—at least in America—are country bred.

TRIP TO THE DENTIST'S.

Western Woman Rode Her Pony Sixty Miles to Have Her Teeth Fixed.

"The experiences of a city bred girl on a western ranch are positively thrilling to me," remarked the woman who was reading a letter from a friend of her youth, to the Philadelphia Record. "Now this friend of mine, so she writes, found herself in need of the attention of a dentist. Did she call a cab or half a trolley car? She did not. Rather, she had her pony saddled early in the morning and rode 25 miles to the nearest doctor of dentistry—only it was 30 miles, because she had to go five miles out of her way on account of the freshets. Instead of resting at her destination she barely had time to eat a bite when she resigned herself to the filing, scraping, buzz-sawing and hammering which is the lot of the victim of ailing molars. A few hours of this modern mode of torture and she was again in the saddle, with the refreshed pony setting out gallantly to complete his 60 miles. Equines have a way of being light-footed when their heads are turned homeward. As for his rider, a husband and three babies anxiously awaited her in the cool, mysterious moonlight."

THIRTY-TWO-WHEEL CAR.

Has Sixteen Steel Trucks and Is the Largest One Ever Constructed.

A perfect car has recently been built by the Bethlehem Steel company for its own use. The company is supplying some very large castings for a 12,000 ton forging press for the Carnegie Steel company, and this car is for their transportation, says the Engineering Record. Both iron and steel castings are being supplied, some of the latter being of extraordinary size. One of them requires about 325,000 pounds of steel and 60 40-ton open-hearth furnaces are employed to provide the metal for it.

This car has 16-wheel trucks, connected by bridge trusses, 66 feet 10 inches long and 6 feet deep at the center. The distance between the king bolts is 64 feet. The car is 103 feet 10 1/2 inches long, over the couplers, 10 feet 2 3/4 inches high, and 9 feet 9 inches wide. It weighs 196,420 pounds, and has a rated capacity of 300,000 pounds. The largest car hitherto constructed was probably that used by the Pennsylvania railroad for transporting a Krupp gun to the Columbian exposition. It also had 32 wheels, but its rated capacity was somewhat less than that of the new car.

SAD FOR SPINDLESHANKS.

Fashion Set by King Edward Brings Woe to Gentlemen with Small Calves.

Now that King Edward has set the fashion for knee breeches in full dress affairs, and is being followed by many of his subjects, it is likely that they will be received ere long on this side of the water. They must, of course, be made of black silk satin, and the effects resulting from such a dress will, to say at least, be somewhat curious, says the American Wool and Cotton Reporter. Those who favor the innovation will be the well-built, athletic class, while those who cry out most loudly against it—that they will not adopt such a ridiculous fashion—will have, no doubt, some personal reasons for not wanting to be seen in knee breeches. It will not be the first fashion adopted that has made men look ridiculous, nor will it probably be the last. King Edward is still the criterion of fashion in London. There is little question as to the style there, at least.

An Immense Opal.

An opal has been found in Australia, on the White Cliff fields, which, with good fortune in the cutting, will make a gem eight inches long by five wide, or larger than any of the crown jewels of Belgium, weighs nearly a pound and is valued at $250,000.

Sardines and People.

A Nebraska family has been poisoned by sardines. Sardines are like people, says the Chicago Record-Herald. There are some bad ones.

INTERNAL CONDITIONS.

Internal conditions throughout the United States as reflected by the July report of the Department of Commerce & Labor, through its Bureau of Statistics, are quite satisfactory. Receipts of live stock at five markets this year to the end of July amounted to 17,734,847 head. Last year, 17,232,004 head were reported to the corresponding date, and 18,599,383 head in 1901. In 1901 a total of 374,976 cars of stock arrived at the same five markets, 305,419 cars in 1902, and 341,802 cars in 1903. The total receipts of stock for this year were divided as follows: at Chicago, 8,577,847 head in 170,565 cars; at Kansas City, 2,650,337 head in 54,210 cars; at Omaha, 2,731,458 head in 49,225 cars; at St. Louis, 2,001,945 head in 37,773 cars; at St. Joseph, 1,773,260 head in 30,029 cars. July receipts of cattle at Chicago this year were the heaviest since 1892, with the single exception of those of July, 1901. The increase in natives as compared with range and Texas stocks was characteristic of July arrivals.

The state of the provision market, as indicated by stocks on hand at the five cities on July 31st, is significant of lowering prices. On that date in 1901 there were 297,801,345 pounds of cut meats reported on hand. In 1902 the corresponding reserve was 209,859,087 pounds, compared with 262,438,440 pounds in 1903.

Backwardness of the season is reflected in the figures of wheat receipts during July, the first month of the new crop year. At the four winter wheat markets of Kansas City, St. Louis, Toledo and Detroit, 11,344,168 bushels were received in July, 1901 as compared with 11,695,087 bushels in July, 1903.

Trade on the Great Lakes between domestic ports to the end of July has exceeded the quantity of freight, handled to that date in 1902 by a million tons. In July, 1901, there were reported 7,004,685 net tons of freight, against 7,582,848 net tons in 1902, and 7,876,410 net tons in 1903. For the first seven months of the current year, 26,928,513 tons of coastwise traffic were reported compared with 25,718,825 tons last year, and 18,891,257 tons in the preceding year, in which navigation opened unusually late. The amount of registered tonnage arriving on the Great Lakes in coastwise trade for the season to July 31st 1902, was 35,089,876 net tons, and 35,870,688 net tons in 1903. Registered tonnage by the way of Sault Ste Marie Canal in 1902, to the same date, totaled 15,003,729 tons compared with 13,923,566 tons in 1903. This decrease is partly explained by the tendency in freight carrying capacity of through steamers to increase at a more rapid rate than their registered tonnage.

Grain receipts at the North Atlantic seaboard to July 31st last year were 111,535,289 bushels compared with 143,439,340 bushels this year.

Receipts at New York for seven months ending July were 55,626,630 bushels in 1902, and 71,416,469 bushels in 1903; at Boston 15,617,322 bushels in 1902 compared with 17,682,987 bushels in 1903; at Philadelphia, 19,193,804 bushels in 1902, in contrast with 22,951,972 bushels in 1903; at Baltimore 20,098,533 bushels in 1902 and 30,387,912 bushels in 1903.

At the Atlantic seaboard the coastwise coal movement for the first six months of the year credited New York with 9,315,191 tons shipped to coastwise destination; Philadelphia, 2,748,554 tons; Baltimore 802,224 tons; Newport News 896,246 tons; Norfolk 979,434 tons. The total shipments during June from those five points were 2,147,666 tons and for six months ending June, 14,741,967 tons. Receipts at Boston for seven months ending July, 1902, were 2,400,027 tons, compared with 3,596,366 tons for the same period in 1903.

Receipts of cotton at United States ports to July 31st, being eleven months of the cotton crop year, were 7,549,438 bales in 1901, compared with 7,542,234 bales last year, and 7,697,999 bales this year, of which 4,990,016 bales were received at Gulf ports, and 2,707,983 bales at Atlantic ports. The exhausted condition of the supply in first hands is indicated by the receipt of only 28,283 bales at United States ports in July, compared with 57,221 bales in 1902, and 173,237 bales in 1901. The extraordinary rise in price to a scarcely level, has, among other things, caused the shipping to New Orleans of 2,400 bales of cotton, during July, from New York, 7,999 bales from Boston, and 2,797 bales of American cotton from Bremen, Germany.

The New Orleans rice report for the year ending July 31st, 1903, gives 1,798,531 sacks of rough rice as comprising the year's supply, and 2,575,250 pockets of clean rice, compared with 1,607,682 pockets in 1901, and 1,164,512 pockets in 1900.

Among special movements characteristic of certain trade centers may be mentioned shipments of manufactured tobacco at Louisville, which for five months in 1902, amounted to 19,612,012 pounds, compared with 22,086,253 pounds in the corresponding period of 1903. Zinc and spelter shipments at St. Louis in 1902 were 1,436,111 slabs compared with 1,463,401 slabs in 1903. Grain shipments at Galveston for the first seven months of 1902 were 1,375,388 bushels, compared with 10,480,702 bushels for the same period of 1903; at New Orleans 9,181,047 bushels in 1902, and 22,312,524 bushels in 1903.

On the Pacific coast the redwood shipments from upper California for seven months of this year were 162,498,334 feet, compared with 145,955,529 feet in 1902, and 135,002,668 feet in 1901. This growth is the result of the increasing domestic as well as foreign demand. Seven months receipts of redwood, pine and fir at California points were 574,163,265 feet in 1903, compared with 483,951,040 feet in 1902, and 362,718,414 feet in 1901.

Monongahela river tonnage for 7 months last year totaled 5,444,732 tons, and 6,055,420 tons in 1903. New York state canals, to July 31st, carried 1,638,846 tons, compared with 1,333,622 tons last season, and 1,437,128 tons in the preceding season.

Anthracite coal shipments reached an aggregate of 37,262,447 tons in the past seven months in contrast with 31,134,766 tons in 1901. Shipments have been practically suspended on account of the strike in the summer of 1902.

BLAMES THE REPORTER.

A man had a piece of news. A reporter heard of it. The reporter called on the man. The man played balloon with the reporter. He swelled noticeably and said: "You fellows never get anything right. So I won't tell you." The reporter did not get angry. He knew that the man was a fool. He had seen them before. He knew the real facts could not be had from any one else. Yet the reporter did the very best he could to get the truth. And published the story as he got it.

Then the man who had refused to give the facts arose early and bought a paper to see if the facts were distorted.

They were. And he said: "I told you so." Query—With whom should the public learn to get even—the reporter who did his best or the arrogant fool, who deliberately refused to help him?—Rockford Star.

Dave Hill should think twice before he makes any more nice little remarks about his erstwhile friends. The democratic donkey kicks and kicks hard. David felt the hoofs once and unlike lightning that donkey can hit twice in the same place.

Admiral Cotton is just but he is also severe and if the sultan thinks our sailor boys have been injured by all the toasting and wining and dining of the past few months he will find the error very soon.

Newport society should particularly notice the new fad of Montana the "Lynching Party." They might be called "Necktie Parties" if the word lynching is objectionable.

If we should go to war to build that canal it would give work for lots of our returned Philippine soldiers who are just aching for another row.

In offering the east coast of Africa for the benefit of the suffering Jews, Great Britain did not stop to ask if the natives cared.

Senator Hanna is sick but no wise man will go after his job just yet. Die is going to capture Salt Lake in his mind.

Minstrel parties are the rage in Newport just now. Why not import a few Turks to do a stunt for the occasion.

Doubtless the Turkish people will find out that there is such a man as "Roosevelt the Strenuous."

The state political pot is still boiling. The Northwestern and Wisconsin State Journal are doing all in their power to make up for their errors of last summer.

That Shamrock should have a good crew of Yankee sailors on board and then the results might be different.

Bryan's friend the Mexican Croesus is not dead and in a few days we will hear that he is richer than ever.

Tom Johnson has only to start his one man band and automobile parade to be defeated once more.

It would be a good time to make Abdul Hamid pay those few dollars he owes the United States.

Devery may beat Low for reelection. Remember that it is in New York that the election takes place.

That Balkan war cloud is causing lots of black faced type on the front pages of newspapers at any rate.

What we have been increasing our navy for is just such an emergency as has arisen in Turkey.

The Brooklyn will be on the spot if there is anything doing down near Constantinople.

It remains to be seen if Sir Tommy has had enough of the yachting sport to last him for a while.

That county fair program may be a good thing for the governor and it may be a bad thing.

Colombia is sorry now that she did not take that ten millions and say nothing.

When they do not like a man down in Arkansas they just punch him in the nose.

Bryan and his friend, La Follette, are both "Reformers."

That Iowa corn crop still continues to grow.

PRESS COMMENT

Chicago Chronicle: As the Macedo-appealing for funds, it is up to Miss Bulgaria Stone to go over there and get captured again.

Omaha Bee: Wizard Edison should perfect his electric propelled vehicle first and frighten the auto-faddists afterwards.

Milwaukee News: It appears that Gov. La Follette has concluded that generalities are less embarrassing than specific charges which are calculated to produce a demand for specific proof.

Evening Wisconsin: Milwaukee Democrats can make a better showing in an effort to secure the National Democratic convention than they can afterwards, for the ticket put in nomination by the delegates.

Oshkosh Northwestern: It will require no lively stretch of imagination to hear Senator Morgan chuckle when he reads of the failure of the Panama canal treaty. At the same time he should remember that the game is not yet over.

Green Bay Gazette: Selwahn says he isn't organizing a combine of tailors. An industry such as that of the tailors cannot be easily formed into a trust, as opposition can be started too easily.

Chippewa Herald: The Nebraska Republican state convention has endorsed Roosevelt for the nomination for president in 1904. If this continues the work of the National convention will be merely formality.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: There are still a few people in Fond du Lac who insist on riding bicycles on the sidewalk, at an uncertain gait, even when the streets are in fair condition.

Chicago Record Herald: Murderer Jim Tillman of South Carolina refuses to indorse the theory that lynchings are responsible for the lynchings.

Chicago Chronicle: A contemporary refers to Professor Jeffries as a "huge plantigrade." If the professor hears of it he will knock the block off somebody. Like Daniel O'Connell's fishwife, the professor is sensitive to epithets.

Oshkosh Times: This is an aphorism, newly coined: Laws that lie directly across the natural rights of men are quite sure to be walked over by men. The worst of it is that habit of ignoring laws of this kind is apt to create a custom of disregarding other laws, even those based upon justice and necessity.

Eau Claire Leader: In future, Ohio will have a commission of expert attorneys to scrutinize bills as they pass the legislature, in order to report upon the feasibility of rejecting or accepting them. Wisconsin would not do amiss to follow suit.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Harry Lahr, the Newport society swell, has taken to wearing a purse suspended from his wrist by a chain. After he has exhausted all other fails for gaining notoriety he might try the plan of wearing a ring in his nose.

Phillips Bee: Milwaukee has 325,000 people, but no cash for running expenses. Improvements are hung up. Teachers have to go without a promised raise in salaries, and there is trouble all around.

Mantowoc Pilot: The Democratic papers are not supposed to be great admirers of the Republican administration but the Republican papers are at last supposed to stand by their governor, but as a matter of fact they say more against La Follette and his administration than the democrats have ever attempted to do. There must be something wrong.

CALKINS FARM TEST CONTINUES

FERTILIZER EXPERIMENTS CONTINUED ON BY STATE.

HENRY RAMSEY ARRIVED TODAY

Looked Over the Ground, and Will Return to Madison Tonight—Ground Platted.

Henry Ramsey, assistant horticulturist at the Madison Experiment station arrived here this morning from the Capital City and will continue the tobacco experiment that is being carried on at the Calkins farm in this city. Professor Sandsten, one of the instructors at the Agricultural school has the experiment in charge and Mr. Ramsey is conducting the work under his direction. The substance of the test is to determine the effect on tobacco, of the application of various fertilizers. Certain plots of land that have been planted to tobacco each year have been supplied with ordinary barn yard manure, commercial fertilizers, and now the clovers and the different grasses are to be planted and their effect as food to the soil determined.

Tested Last Year.
Last season an assistant, under the direction of Professor Sandsten, treated the same soil to an application of a commercial fertilizer, later the tobacco was planted, and a record of the results was kept. This year, the treatment of the soil will be made after the crop has been removed and clover and vetch will be put in. Mr. Ramsey brought with him, from the experiment station, about seventy-five pounds of different seeds and the ground formerly used will be carefully platted and certain proportions of the two kinds of grasses sown. An account of the next tobacco crop will be accurately made as to its quality and yield so that a practical comparison can be made as to the difference in these features caused by the new treatment of the ground. Mr. Ramsey is the assistant in horticulture under Professor Sandsten and comes to the Badger state from the University of Minnesota, where he studied for a number of years, and took part in the experiments in horticulture that were being carried on at that station.

Good Crop at Heddles Farm.
He will take part in the planting of the seed at the Calkins farm today and return to Madison this evening. While here Mr. Ramsey will make a report on the Sumatra grown tobacco on the Heddles farm, of which great things are expected. This crop is doing finely and the harvest has already commenced. Mr. E. H. Humphrey of Michigan has been selected to fill Superintendent Carlyle's place at the Madison station and will begin his duties at the model farm early in the fall. Professor Carlyle, who goes west to accept a higher position at a western college, will be greatly missed by all who are connected with the experiment work at Madison.

TWO MATCHES TO START TOMORROW

Benedicts and Bachelors of the Mississippi Club Will Each Contend for Trophies.

Two match events begin at the golf links tomorrow, one for the married men of the club and one for their bachelor peers.
The benedict contest is for a steth hung up as a trophy by J. P. Baker. The bachelor prize is presented by Al Schaller.
Miss Belle MacLean and Miss Catherine Fifield will play tomorrow for the ownership of the Valentine medal for the coming year.

BASS CREEK DROPS ONE TO CLINTON

Invincible Team Loses by a Narrow Margin at Yost's Park in Sunday's Game.

Considered well-nigh unconquerable the Bass Creek nine were yesterday defeated the Clinton Maroons. A single run did the trick, the ultimate score being two to one. There were knockers who attributed defeat to the umpire.
Yost's park was the scene of the game, the usual Sunday crowd being present to witness the contest between the two leading teams of Rock county.

BEFORE THE GREAT JUDGE

James Smith, aged five months, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Smith, who reside at 104 North Jackson street died at 6:30 a. m., Sunday. The funeral was held from St. Patrick's church at half past two this afternoon. Interment was made at Mt. Olivet. Mr. and Mrs. James Walsh of Milwaukee, Mrs. Smith's parents, arrived this morning to attend the funeral.

Earl O. Kelly of Milton Junction passed away on Saturday morning after a week's illness of typhoid fever. The funeral will be held from the Methodist church at Milton Junction on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock and interment will be in the Milton cemetery.

Charles Tallman, J. H. Owen and Professor Taylor left today for Evansville, where they will this afternoon play against the Evansville Tennis club. This will be the second series that the local team and Evansville will play. They expect to return to the city this evening.

FRESH AIR LADS AND LASSES HERE

Pass Through the City on Way to Chicago—Happy Days at Milton and Stoughton.

A carload of tired but happy small boys and girls went through here this morning to Chicago, from Stoughton and Milton where they have been given an outing through the efforts of the Chicago Bureau of Charities. There were nearly fifty of them all told and their appearance indicated that they had seen more sunshine and fresh air than is usually allotted to children of their class in the big cities. About twenty-five of the crowd were taken care of near Milton by Miss Brown; some of these have spent four or five weeks at different farm houses in that vicinity. Those who were sent to Stoughton have been away from the crowded city streets only two weeks. Nearly all of the little girls brought back bunches of the wild flowers for their parents and friends and to remind them of their only vacation.

MISS CARPENTER WEDS MR. ATWOOD

Marriage of City Editor of Gazette to Janesville Young Lady Occurs Today.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Carpenter, 19 Milton avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding this afternoon. Miss Harriet E. Carpenter, their daughter, being married to David Atwood, formerly of Madison and now city editor of the Gazette. Only a few immediate relatives witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Robert C. Denison of the Congregational church, among them being Mr. Atwood's mother, Mrs. C. D. Atwood, his grandmother, Mrs. Ward, and his aunt, Miss Atwood, all of Madison.

Ferns, potted plants, green foliage and white flowers formed the decorations of the parlor where the ceremony was performed. The living room was in golden glow and the dining room in pink. Miss Libbie Tremwith served a dainty three-course luncheon, after which the newly married couple departed for Chicago, whence they will start upon a brief lake trip. Upon their return they will reside in this city at 104 Park place, and will be at home after October 1st.

DRINKS BOTTLE OF FATAL ACID

HENRY TESSIN ENDS HIS LIFE DELIBERATELY.

ACTIONS PECULIAR AT TIMES

Derangement Probable Cause—His Death Occurred at La Prairie.

Henry Tessin was found dead in an oat bin Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, surrounding circumstances making it clear that he had died by his own hand. He was 38 years of age, and was employed by W. B. Hodge on the Robert Pollock farm in the town of La Prairie. It was in the second story of the barn on the Pollock farm that his body was found, an empty carbolic acid bottle lying by his side supplying the necessary details regarding the manner of his death. It is believed that he was in a temporarily deranged condition at the time that he swallowed the deadly fluid.

Ill For Several Days.
For two or three years past Mr. Tessin had been slightly ill, but he continued to do light work around the farm. Up to within an hour of the time he ended his life he was seen near the barn. At about four-thirty o'clock he was wanted. After a short search his lifeless body was discovered in an oat bin on the second floor of the barn.

Medical aid was summoned, but it was found that he had been dead for some time. The empty acid bottle which was found was of three ounces capacity. His mouth, lips, and throat were so badly burned as to make it evident that he had swallowed a quantity of the acid.

No Reason for Suicide.
In his personal habits Mr. Tessin had given no one reason to believe that he would desire to end his life. He did not drink and had saved a fund of money. At times he had complained of pains in his head, and at those times his actions had been peculiar. A brother, Fred Tessin, of Whitewater, who is his nearest relative, came to this city two weeks ago to find out whether he should be placed under care. It is thought that temporary mental derangement may have caused him to drink the acid.

There will be no jury investigation of the cause of death, suicide evidently having been committed.

Funeral at Whitewater.
Fred Tessin, brother of decedent, and Undertaker Chaffee arrived this morning from Whitewater, where the body was taken today. The funeral will not be held until Wednesday, awaiting the arrival of two brothers from Iowa.

Current Literature.

MODERN BIBLICAL IGNORANCE

The prevalent optimism concerning the present condition of American education as a whole is broken by an almost unanimous confession of failure in one particular. The typical young American of today is generally admitted does not know the Bible as his father knew it. "It is apparent," begins a recent resolution of the National Educational association, "that familiarity with the English Bible as a masterpiece of literature is rapidly decreasing among the pupils in our schools." In all the comments that have been provoked by the rest of the resolution there has been scarcely any attempt to question the truth of this preamble. A few years ago, public opinion, within the churches, at least was shocked by President Thwing's revelation of the ignorance of a number of college students whose acquaintance with biblical allusions and quotations he had tested by means of an examination paper. Since then, the decadence of American education in this respect has been the topic of many jeremiads from the pulpit and in the press, journalists lamenting that the style of speech and writing has consequently deteriorated and preachers bewailing a resultant lowering of the moral standard.—Herbert W. Torwill, in the September Atlantic.

Pulitzer The Product of Environment

Joseph Pulitzer, was born in the very heart of the masses, in poverty and obscurity. He was born under a flag of oppression, born of a savagely oppressed race, born into conditions which could not fail to stir a good mind of generous instincts, to a passionate hatred of injustice, a passionate longing for equality and freedom. He came to this country a mere boy, and several years before he was of age, served in the Union Army in one of the German regiments. At the end of the war he was mustered out into poverty, but with some knowledge of the English language and some acquaintance with the politics and the people of this country. Perhaps the most amazing instance of his triumph over difficulties is his learning of the English language—learning to speak and write and think it with perfect fluency, with an accent so slight that it is never noticeable unless one listens for it—with a knowledge of meaning that would excite the wonder and the envy of a student of English to whom it was the mother tongue.

For a few years he had a romantic but cruelly hard career as a day-laborer, politician in the German quarter of St. Louis, German newspaper reporter. By incessant toil, by a marvellous exhibition of mental and physical capacity, mental and physical courage, he became a politician in a larger way, a recognized public speaker both in English and German, earned a small competence in German journalism before he was thirty and retired to devote himself to economics and politics. Then he became proprietor of a bankrupt, roused out, worse than dead St. Louis English paper—whatever else it then was, it was not a newspaper. In about five years he transformed it from the deadest newspaper, in the United States to the most alive. How?

By making it the same sort of a paper that he was a man—nervous, keen, inquisitive, furious against class and caste of privilege, against corruption in public office, against injustice everywhere, against that favoritism in the publication of news which wins the approval of the "better class," by publishing none of its wrong doings but everything interesting in the misdoings of the humble. His was a newspaper that printed the startling happenings; thus appealing to the universal human hankering for that which sways the great emotions—love and hate, money and power.

The Business Basis Best.

The remarkable success of the International Postal Union suggests the manner in which the new industrial spirit will gradually efface the political frontiers. On the other hand, the last five years have furnished some striking examples of how not to do it. There would have been no fight in South Africa and none in the Philippine Islands if modern industrial ideas had prevailed in the cabinets. Both wars were fought in defence of the ancient political principle of state sovereignty—wraith of the old regime, a bloody ghost that still stalks abroad to fright the children of this new age. Certainly we were bound to take in the Philippines; but we should have dealt in accordance with the principles of business, rather than those of diplomacy; we should have made our bargain with Manila instead of Madrid.—From the Expansion of the Republic, by Charles Ferguson, in September National Magazine.

The Popular Science Monthly For September contains the following articles: "Palm and Sole Impressions and their Use for Purposes of Personal Identification," by Professor Harris Hawthorne Wilder; "Some of the Extra-artistic Elements of Esthetic Emotion," by John Cotton Dana; Karl Lamprecht and Kulturgeschichte," by Professor Wm. E. Dodd; "Pulse and Rhythm," by Mary Halleck; "Theories of Sleep," by Dr. Percy G. Stiles; "Hertzian Wave Wireless Telegraphy," by Dr. J. A. Fleming; "Mosquitoes and Suggestions for their extermination," by W. L. Underwood; "The Ascending Obelisk of the Montague Pelee," by Professor Angelo Hellprin; "Professor Shaler on Animal Intelligence," by Dr. Euz. L. Fisk and the usual departments.

Youth at the Head of the Steel Trust From Leslie's Monthly for September.

There are two very striking facts about the recent selection of William B. Corey to be nominally assistant to the president, but actually the head of the United States Steel corporation. One is that at the age of 37 he becomes the directing power of the biggest corporation in the world. The other is that aside from his knowledge of the steel business and his proved ability in executive positions, the chief consideration that led to his appointment apparently was the belief that he would prove a safe and conservative man in the position. We think of conservatism as associated naturally with gray hairs and dignity, but the man who sits at the president's desk in the offices of the steel corporation today is a short, sturdy-built, blue-eyed and ruddy-checked individual who looks more youthful than his years would indicate and who puts on no more airs than he did when he was superintendent of a single department in one of the Carnegie mills.

Catsups and Salads By Dorothy Ray. The Pilgrim for September.

A granite or porcelain kettle should be used in making catsup, with a wooden spoon for stirring. The vegetables or fruits should be very ripe, but solid and free from decay, and put through a colander, then through a sieve and to five pounds of and smooth. Pound, mix and sift together all condiments before adding them to the pulp. Pour the catsup while hot into bottles, cork and seal, then when cool place in a cool dry place. Catsup, like fruit butter must be stirred constantly to prevent burning.

In making pickles or catsup it is not advisable to use a copper or brass kettle, since the action of vinegar on those metals will produce a dangerous poison. Neither should these condiments be put into glazed jars, since salt and vinegar will penetrate the glaze and produce a poison. Glass or stone jars are preferred to any other. Catsup should be sealed in half pint bottles. Pickles need not be sealed, but must be kept well covered, as exposure to the air softens them and vitiates the vinegar.

Cold Catsup.

This excellent recipe for catsup requires no cooking. To two quarts of ripe tomatoes chopped fine, add one half a teaspoonful each of grated horseradish, whole mustard seed, onions and nasturtium seeds chopped fine, two stalks of celery and one red pepper chopped, one-fourth of a cupful each of salt and sugar, one a tablespoonful of black pepper, cloves, mace and cinnamon, and one pint of vinegar.

Grape Catsup.

Cook grapes till tender, strain through a sieve and to five pounds of pulp add three pounds of sugar, one-half a tablespoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice and pepper, with one-half a teaspoonful of salt.

Cucumber Catsup.

This is another catsup that requires no cooking. After peeling, seeds, grate fine and put in a colander 15 minutes to drain. To every quart of pulp add two teaspoonfuls of grated horseradish, one teaspoonful of salt, half a pint of cider vinegar and half a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Mix thoroughly, put in small bottles and seal. This catsup is especially commended for fish and game.

Burnside is in the region of Kingston and will attack that place before Monday.

WHITE FAMILY HELD IN SLAVERY HOLDS THEM UNDER CONTRACT

Forces Contract for Three Years' Service for Alleged Debt of $46, Under Threat That He Will Send Them to the Penitentiary.

Troy, Ala., Aug. 31.—The evidence in the case of the United States against Marion Prestwood, a wealthy planter and turpentine operator, which was heard here before Federal Commissioner Tutwiler, shows that poor whites as well as negroes are being held in slavery in Alabama.

Prestwood was charged with holding Robert English, a white man, and his family of ten children in peonage. The evidence showed that Prestwood made a contract with English in 1902 by which the former was to furnish the English family with rations in consideration of the latter working sixty acres on shares. When the crop was made Prestwood ceased to furnish rations and seized the crop.

Forces a Contract. When the English family tried to secure work to save themselves from starving, Prestwood had the old man and six boys arrested, accusing them of burning turpentine boxes valued at $46. This charge, Prestwood admitted to Commissioner Tutwiler, was groundless. After the arrest Prestwood told the men that as he controlled the magistrate he could send them to the penitentiary, but he said that if the family would sign a contract to work for him until 1905, to repay the $46, he would furnish them what they had to eat.

The father and his sons being frightened, signed the contract, and have since been at work for Prestwood.

The father and his six sons, who were brought before the commissioner, are pitifully ignorant, and seemed to know no law above the planter, who to them was all powerful.

Witnesses Are Timid. It required the greatest care and skill on the part of the officials to avoid frightening the witnesses into panics of absolute silence.

The seven peons were dressed in two garments each and had absolutely nothing except the clothes on their backs, worth in all possibly $1.

New courage was infused into them by a round of square meals at a local hotel.

The English swore that they never had enough to eat, and their looks sustained the statement. They were sallow faced, hollow eyed and their lips as white as their shirts. Prestwood was placed under heavy bond. He is worth $100,000.

Federal officers say that poor whites are being held as peons in a number of counties.

WILL STUDY THE CATTLE TRADE

Scotchmen to Visit Texas Ranches and American Wheat Fields.

New York, Aug. 31.—There has arrived on the Lucania a group of Scotchmen who have come to study cattle ranches of Texas. They are cattle raisers and will devote two months learning every phase of the industry, from cattle-raising to beef-packing. They are T. Carlaw Martin, editor of the Dundee Advertiser and representing John Leng & Co., owners of that and two other papers; R. Pringle, David McIntyre and I. L. Lumsden. They represent many stockholders in the Metador company, which has Texas ranches. Mr. Martin will also look into the wheat market with a view to opposing Chamberlain's preferential price for a tariff against American exports to Great Britain.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

CHAPTER VII.

Richard Dysart's first act, after setting foot on dry land at Southampton, was to dispatch two letters—one to Marcia at Gatewood, the other to Stella to Denecroft. All his boyish anger with Sir Arthur had long since evaporated, and he rightly judged that his brother would meet him half-way on his home-coming, and let by-gones be by-gones. He would arrive almost as soon as the letters.

Ninety minutes later he was in the metropolis via the steamer train, and after breakfast at his old club, the Reglan, he made sundry visits to the tailor, the haberdasher and his bankers, and then drove to the identical private detective agency in Wellington street which Rossiter Kane had visited only a few hours before.

If the case had gone to Scotland Yard he might—we do not say he would, but he might—have learned that there was a sort of polite hue-and-cry out after himself. But the private-inquiry people do not do business that way; they have for one of their mottoes, "Let not your right hand know what your left hand is doing," and then proceed to collect backsheesh from both. Which is all in the way of business.

Being a straightforward sort of fellow, Richard wrote his name on a sheet of paper, intimated that he would like to see the manager in person, and was forthwith shown into the sanctum of the great man, when the following colloquy ensued:

"What can we do for you, Mr.—Dysart?" inquired the manager, as though he had not heard the name of his visitor in that very room considerably less than a week previously.

"I want you to undertake a little inquiry for me," was the reply.

"Connected with any particular person?"

"No one that I can name to you now—that is for you to discover."

"Quite sufficiently vague," was the retort, "but if you will give me your instructions we will endeavor to carry out your wishes."

"I wish to find out whether there has suddenly appeared in London—or in Europe, for that matter—within the last year any man of great wealth hailing from South Africa, and whether that person has been in any way connected with the diamond fields, or has marketed any considerable quantity of stones. That's it, I think, in a nutshell."

"The instructions are explicit enough, Mr. Dysart," said the manager, "but I may be allowed to point out that there are probably a dozen men in London or in Amsterdam at this moment who would come under your classification."

"Very good," said Richard, coolly, "and the person I want will be one of the dozen. If it lies within your province, send me a description of the doings of each."

"Very good, sir. Anything more?"

"I think that will be enough for a starter," said Richard, "except that I should like you to trek at once—I mean make haste, you know—and you need not worry about the expense," laying a fifty-pound Bank of England note on the desk.

"You will hear from us in a few days, Mr. Dysart. Have I your address?"

"Denecroft by Blandford, Dorset," and so saying he took his departure. "We must give them both a run for their money," soliloquized the astute manager, "but it strikes me as a case of Tweedledum and Tweedledee. The first thing is to notify Mr. Kane that his man is in England."

But before the report was prepared in the customary verbiage of the agency, there arrived a dispatch from Rossiter Kane in these words:

"Discontinue search; the gentleman has been found."

CHAPTER VIII.

And now the quick march of events brings us to the night of the dance at The Cedars, which was to confront for the first time on one stage the chief characters in this little drama.

Dinner for the house party was over at 8:30, and by nine o'clock the invited guests from the nearby country-side began to arrive. Among the first flight was the party from Denecroft—Stella and Sir Arthur, Marcia Churchill and Richard.

The historic old picture gallery, which was to be devoted to the dancing, was already well-filled, and Rossiter Kane stood at the entrance to receive his guests in company with a young-old dowager, Lady Agatha Kinkaid, who had consented to chaperon the house party, seeing that the host was a bachelor.

A typical English butler, rubicund of face, portly in form, and with irreproachable natural underpinning, announced the arrivals, and when in pompous tones he vociferated:

"Sir Harthor Dysart and Miss Dysart, Mr. Richard Dysart and Miss Churchill!" It needed all Kane's self-control to compose his features and his manner to the requisite standard of polite and genial interest.

A moment now, and he would know his fate—recognition, exposure, disgrace, or—

Sir Arthur, with Stella on his arm, came first, and passed under the arched door of the gallery, followed by Richard and Marcia. The first couple paused a moment after their greetings, and it fell to Marcia to introduce Richard to his host.

"Welcome to The Cedars and welcome home, Mr. Dysart!" said Kane. There fronted him a tall, athletic figure, bronzed and tanned of face, as clean-shaven as himself save for a tawny mustache, and in the man's conventional evening dress bearing not the remotest resemblance to or suggestion of the unkempt and bearded wayfarer of the Karroo Desert.

TURNING TO STELLA, KANE ASKED TO SEE HER DANCE CARD.

The two men gripped hands in the hearty English fashion, and each looked the other squarely in the face. The first keen glance was what Kane feared most, but in the steady gaze of Richard there was naught save the utmost courtesy.

Kane's heart leaped. He was safe, at least for the present. But there was an expression of studied interest in Richard's glance as they exchanged a few commonplaces, as though asking "what manner of man is this?" which was to be explained a moment later.

Turning to Stella, Kane asked to see her dance-card, saying—

"My duties will not permit me to be selfish, but I claim the first waltz." She handed him the enameled pasteboard, and while he was perusing his initials, thereon the girl murmured in significant tones that none other could hear—

"Be on your best behavior to-night, sir," flashing him a dazzling smile across her snowy shoulder as she was led away.

Kane sent her an answering look, and breathed more freely. The fact that the brothers were both under his roof seemed a good omen, and argued no opposition to his suit.

For the first time in many days his inner mood lightened. All might yet go well, and he resumed his task of welcoming the remaining guests with almost boyish vim and abandon.

After all, the ball would be a personal triumph, as he had at first intended, with his affianced bride as his chief ornament and attraction for him.

That waltz with Stella Dysart, he told himself, the soft perfume of her hair floating upward like blessed incense, was worth periling a man's soul for. The while he held her in his arms he vowed to himself that he would go through the fires of perdition rather than give her up. Yet even at the thought there came to him the dread query, like a grinning demon in the midst of a feast, "What would she say or do if she knew the truth?" But he wittily drove the thing away, and resolved, for that moment at least, to drink the cup of happiness to the last drop.

As he led her to a cool corner after the final crashing bars of the music he murmured:

"I shall call upon Sir Arthur in the morning, dearest. You can guess why."

"I will tell him to expect you," she said, lifting her eyes bravely to his, the love-light shining in their starlike depths.

"Will your brothers be likely to make any objections, do you think?" he inquired, the slight tremor of anxiety in his voice seeming perfectly natural to the girl's quick perception.

"I think Sir Arthur will be glad to get me off his hands," she said regally. "As for Rick, why, he does not know you very well, you see, and he must take my word for it that you are perfectly eligible, of legal age, and sound mind!"

"I'm not so sure about that last," he responded, catching at her gay humor, and answering in kind. "When a man is bewitched, you know—"

The rest of the sentence was unfinished, for at that moment Stella was claimed for the next dance, and Kane saw her no more until supper was served, when he had expressly reserved the privilege of taking her in, and she sat on his right hand with Richard on his left.

By all rules of social precedence these places of honor belonged to others, but at the last moment Kane gave orders which resulted in the arrangement named. The evening had begun and continued auspiciously, and with his customary cool hardihood he resolved to then and there test to the utmost the possibility of Richard's recognizing him.

During the repast the talk naturally drifted to the Cape. Nearly everyone knew that Rick had just returned thence, and he was kept busy answering questions as to his adventures, so that Kane was spared the necessity of originating or replying to any direct inquiries, but by a judicious remark here and there he showed his knowledge of the subjects touched on, nor seemed to manifest the slightest desire for concealment.

Every word he uttered had for its ulterior object the creating of a favorable impression upon Richard Dysart, but it was all done with such consummate tact that the younger and bluffer man was completely captivated by the elder, as was proved when, on kissing Stella good-night, after their drive home, he said—

"Well, sis, your Rossiter Kane seems to be a trump!"

"Thank you, Rick," was her reply. "I just knew you would like him!" and, covered with happy blushes, she disappeared.

So the ball was an unqualified success, and the star of Rossiter Kane was in the ascendant house.

At noon the next day he cantered up to the entrance of Denecroft and inquired for Sir Arthur Dysart. On being ushered into the library he found the baronet alone and apparently expectant, for, true to her promise, Stella had expressly asked her elder brother to remain at home that morning.

"Eh—eh—what's in the wind now, Stella?" the baronet inquired, looking up from his letters, and blinking nervously at his sister. "More surprises?"

Stella, to conceal her embarrassment, came around to the back of his chair and leaned over his shoulder, roughing and ruffling his hair in a certain tormentingly lovable way as was her wont.

"Aren't you glad Rick is back?" she inquired, woman-like talking of the thing that was farthest from her heart at that moment.

LASH AND EXILE A BLACK MAN

Angry Men Punish Negro Who Made Citizen Apologize to His Wife.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 31.—Henry Carr, a negro, who has been running a store in Alexandria for several years, was met at the jail door by a body of representative citizens and given fifty lashes on his bare back with a rawhide and ordered to leave the state. The penalty was given because Carr had forced J. C. Mosley, a white man, to apologize at the point of a gun to the negro's wife. When one of Mosley's friends interfered he was threatened death. The whites of Alexandria became infuriated and decided to drive the negro from the town. Carr served a term in the United States penitentiary at Minneapolis not many years ago.

BIG LOSS TO THE METHODISTS

Shortage of $634,298 Suffered by New York Book Committee.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 31.—According to reports here the small shortage in the San Francisco end of the Methodist Book concern falls into insignificance in view of allegations of a shortage of over $634,000 in New York. Eaton & Mains, the New York publishing agents of the book concern, have made to the general committee a report which does not reach the public. This, it is declared publicly here, shows a loss in the business of the New York book committee amounting to $634,298.25, in addition to a net loss at San Francisco of $3,514.98.

GATES IS ALMOST WELL AGAIN

Thinks He Will Be Able to Leave Saratoga Soon.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 31.—John W. Gates, whose impaired health was a matter of deep concern to his family and friends, has so rapidly improved of late that he begins to look like his former self. When he arrived a few weeks ago his weight had been reduced sixty pounds, but he recovered a portion of this, and at the present rate of progress he bids fair soon to be restored to health. He is thinking of leaving for home, but friends are seeking to induce him to remain.

Cyclone Destroys Buildings.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 31.—A small tornado at McCallsburg, Story county, did considerable damage. Barns were blown down, the timbers being carried two blocks distant. Heavy hail stripped the corn fields badly.

More Fissures in Vesuvius.

Naples, Aug. 31.—Vesuvius is still in eruption, but no damage is being done. Three new horizontal fissures about 500 feet long can be seen in the volcano. The stream of lava going toward Pompeii is flowing much slower and is now insignificant.

License to Pere Marquette.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 31.—The Pere Marquette railroad company of Michigan has been licensed to incorporate in Illinois by the secretary of state. The capital stock is $28,000,000.

Durbin Inspects Indiana Prison.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 31.—Gov. Durbin and the prison and reformatory boards inspected the state prison at Michigan City and considered management problems.

LIPTON IS ROBBED BY GUESTS

Women Accused of Carrying Souvenirs From Yacht Erin.

New York, Aug. 31.—Other troubles than failure to lift the America's cup assail Sir Thomas Lipton these days. As a result of entertaining parties aboard his steam yacht Erin his steward reports startling shortage in the supply of table silver and linen. Among the guests are said to have been many women who apparently could not resist the temptation to carry away tokens of the occasion. The articles most generally taken were easily concealed pieces of silver. Knives, forks, spoons, salt cellars and other articles 1 vo disappeared by the dozens. The value of these articles is considerable.

Mrs. N. J. Casey, of 109 Prairie ave., says "Doan's Kidney Pills proved better than any other medicine I took for my kidneys. These organs troubled me off and on for many years. Backache was the chief symptom and often caused me to suffer severely. I tried a number of remedies but continued to grow worse instead of better. I was finally persuaded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box at the People's Drug Store. I only took them a few days when I felt better. Should there be any recurrence of my trouble I know what to use."

For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's and take no other.

All Aboard ...For School

THERE is just a few days left in which to get the boys ready for school, so we thought that a boy's clothing talk would not go amiss. We have on hand now what we think is the nicest and most reasonable lot of good clothes for boys that we have ever shown. We have tried to put such a price on them that all can buy, and you cannot make a mistake in purchasing from us a good, solid all wool, well made boys' suit. We show every style in double breasted, cutaways and norfolks. We cannot ask you to buy, but we do ask you if you wouldn't like to see the clothes. We took particular pains to select what we thought would please you and at each price you will find unlimited quantity.

We have tried to describe a few here:

Plain Black Cheviot Norfolk suits, made from all wool materials, lined with farmer, satin, all buttons well sewed on; all ages; a very neat, gobby, pretty and good suit ..... $2.50

Fancy Heavy Cassimere Cheviot Norfolk suits, made up as only you will find all our boys' clothes made. The sizes are right; the linings are good; they won't rip; very handsome ..... $3.50

Here are some extra nice Scotch Cheviot suits made cutaway style with coat, vest, pants and dickle; very heavy and pretty. The color is a good gray that won't show the dirt and taken all in all they are a bargain ..... $4.00

It will please us immensely to have you come in and look at what we have. We don't think you'll regret it, and we know that we won't.

ANENT INTERURBAN ROAD QUESTIONS

Two Persons Submit Arguments—
Why Didn't Clough People
Build? They Say.

The following communications regarding the present interurban situation have been submitted to the Gazette

To the Editor:
Did the Janesville Traction company intend to build the interurban line to Madison when it secured the franchise on June 8th last? If it did, why did it not after receiving the franchise make application for franchises in the other cities and the towns through which it must pass? Why did it not make a blue print even or begin a survey of a route or do even one thing indicative of a purpose to use the franchise it had obtained?

Did it not rather secure the franchise as a valuable asset to carry about in its pocket and to use or not to use as best suited its purpose? Is it not using that asset now as an instrument to secure further concessions from the city? Are the acts of the Traction company in accord with the spirit or the letter of the solemn obligation entered into with the city? After the contest waged for months to secure the franchise and the arguments and promises made did not the common council and the citizens of Janesville expect that the other necessary franchises were to be applied for at once and the work of laying out and constructing begin?

If the Traction company can not make good its promises and its obligation, then as business men and gentlemen it should acknowledge the coin and say to Janesville: "If you can secure the execution of this enterprise on the terms granted (and it can) then we will step aside. If you fail after a reasonable time we will again apply on the same terms or such terms as we can comply with."

If concessions are to be granted to the Traction company what motives prompt them? Hundreds of dollars were spent by a home company in organizing and financing the enterprise before the Traction company was organized. The Clough interests have no consideration for the interests of Janesville except as they serve its own interests.

The change in the franchise asked for ought to be granted on the terms of the original grant. The common council ought not to let itself or the city of Janesville to any company, much less to a company who fails to fulfill the spirit or letter of its agreement and threatens to throw the city overboard unless the city complies with its demands. It is the consensus of the opinion of business men in Janesville that the extension of the time for accepting the franchise be not granted, and that by all means the bond of good faith for the construction of the road should not be waived; that if the Traction company cannot comply with the original franchise then let the time limit expire and let other companies and other business interests in on the enterprise on an equal footing.

Another Communication
To the Editor:

The Clough people claim that the Rockford, Beloit & Janesville people are back of the proposition to build the road to Madison, and that the new road will be merely an extension of the old. Now it is well known that the people who furnished the money to build the Rockford line are financiers of large means and abundant resources. If they are the interested parties why don't they show up on the surface and let their identity be known and their connection with the "proposed extension" become established. That might perhaps serve to remove the suspicion of a "Clough promotion scheme" which now clings to the whole affair.

Of course it must be admitted that if such persons are really interested we probably should have heard from them without having their views altered through Mr. Clough.

The fact that they have not shown up warrants us in concluding that they are not interested and that this is merely an independent move on Clough's part as a mere "promotion scheme."

University Comparisons.

There are almost as many university teachers in the United States as there are university students in the United Kingdom. The number of professors and instructors at the universities and colleges included in the list of the United States commissioner of education is 17,000. The number of students in British universities and university colleges is only about 20,500.

Physique Argument Falls.

At a recent examination of applicants for positions on the police force in New York 30 per cent were rejected as physically unfit. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale and the Rev. Lyman Abbott insist that women should not be allowed to vote because they cannot serve on the police force. If this is sound logic, then should not the above 30 per cent of physical incompetents be disfranchised?
